The TECC course is a hands-on training program for EMS providers to address the tactics and techniques needed to decrease occurrences of preventable deaths caused by trauma, as outlined by the Committee for Tactical Emergency Casualty Care (C-TECC). Students will go through innovative skills stations to practice the following techniques:

- Distinguishing the difference between Direct Threat, Indirect Threat, and Evacuation Zone environments and care principles/priorities.
- Providing hemorrhage control using the following techniques: tourniquet application, tourniquet de-escalation, providing direct pressure, applying pressure dressings and packing wounds, and the use of topical hemostatic dressings.
- Providing airway and respiratory management, including needle decompression, surgical cricothyroidotomy, and the use of other airway devices.
- Treating patients for hemorrhagic shock with IV fluids and/or blood products.
- Demonstrating multiple tactical casualty movement and extraction techniques such as drags, carries, and lifts.

This course includes skills applicable to both ALS and BLS treatment protocols in Massachusetts, however some skills that will be addressed are not authorized for BLS providers in Massachusetts. BLS providers may register for the course, however priority will be given to ALS providers.
